Since 1885, Rockport Volunteer Fire Department has dedicated itself to saving lives and protecting property. Per their mission statement, they are committed to providing to our citizens the best possible service in a courteous, professional, and cost-effective manner, to assure that every person who contacts the fire department receives satisfaction to the best of our ability.

They achieve this through continuous education, training, and community involvement, while maintaining the safest working environment possible. Under the auspices of Fire Chief Steve Sims, Assistant Fire Chief Matthew Grimes and Captains Aaron Guerrero, Gillian Cox, Joe Carvajal and John Carvajal, the 65 firefighters and members of the Fire Corp provide a vital service to our community, which not only saves lives and property, but also decreases the cost of homeowner and rental insurance for our residents.

Volunteers with Castaways and representatives of First Presbyterian Church, First United Methodist Church, Peace Lutheran Church, Sacred Heart Catholic Church, and St. Peters Episcopal Church work tirelessly to generate and accept donations; stock the shop in a clean, retail setting; manage the registers; and assist with the loading and unloading of materials. People may donate to the organization, commonly referred to as the “shop,” or any of the five church partners, which share a percentage of their sales that go towards Castaways operating costs.

Over the past five years, Castaways has infused than $1.3 million in the community to youth activities, history and arts, animal rescue, social services, and volunteer first responders. In 2019, Castaways awarded more than $438,000 in grants. Although Castaways is currently closed to protect the health of its volunteers and community, they are accepting applications for the coming year.
